Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 17 March 2008.
- 2a) ☒ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☐ This action is non-final.
- 3) ☐ Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hahn-Carlson et al (US 2004/0010463 A1) in view of Spencer et al (US 6,349,299 B1).

As to claims 1 and 7, Hahn-Carlson et al show defining a contract domain (Fig.2) including a contract entity (215) having attributes of an agreement between a customer and a provider (Fig.2 where agreement between buyer and seller are shown) of a communications product (the product specifically being a communications product is considered non-functional descriptive language since it does not influence the steps outlined by the method, and thus is not given patentable weight); defining a product domain including a product entity having attributes of the communications product (paragraph 46); defining an account receivables domain including an account entity having attributes of a customer account (paragraph 7 although disclosed in the Background of the application, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to incorporate the account receivables domain since it would have been merely a combination of known elements, and in the combination, each element merely would have performed the same function as it did separately, and one of ordinary skill in the art would have recognized that the results of the combination were predictable); defining a customer domain including a party entity having attributes of a party (paragraph 31 "...transaction information may include...identities of the buyer and seller...");

defining within said customer domain a contract instance of said contract entity, a product instance of said product entity, and an account instance of said account entity (paragraph 52 where the various entity information is within the buyer procurement domain);

generating views of product instances, the views including customer-oriented views (paragraph 36);

wherein an entity in contract domain is directly related to another entity in another contract domain (Fig.2 where the contract domains in seller entity and buyer entity are related).

However, Hahn-Carlson et al does not expressly show defining a location domain including a location entity having attributes of a geographic location. Spencer et al show defining a location domain including a location entity having attributes of a geographic location (Fig.7). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to include in the method of establishing data domains, a location domain as shown by Spencer et al since the claimed invention is merely a combination of old elements, and in the combination each element merely would have performed the same function as it did separately, and one of ordinary skill in the art would have recognized that the results of the combination were predictable.

As to claims 2 and 8, Hahn-Carlson et al show contract entity being directly related to product entity (paragraph 52 where user can access the contract data as well as the related product data through the procurement system).

As to claims 3, 4, 9 and 10, Hahn-Carlson et al show contract terms being accessible to users (abstract) and being directly related to product entity (paragraph 15).

As to claims 5, 6, 11 and 12, Hahn-Carlson et al show contract domain including an outcome entity having attributes of the outcome of contract and outcome entity being related to product entity (abstract where the pricing is considered to be the outcome of the contract).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed June 12, 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The assertion that Hahn-Carlson does not show generating customer-oriented views is incorrect since it is taught in paragraph 36 which shows a user's view being based on organizational hierarchy. Therefore, a view of product instances would be generated based on profiles assigned to each user in an organization.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
